1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-7 are finally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b or e) as being anticipated by or obvious over Puppe et al., Miller et al, Hau-Riege et al. or Landers et al. Each reference includes a discussion of a two step cmp process in which the first step utilizes a slurry selective to a barrier layer or to a copper layer. It would have been obvious to employ the specific selectivities claimed in order to optimize the processes noted in the references.

4. Applicant's arguments filed on 06/12/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The applied references teach that which is claimed. Moreover in some instances the applicants arguments are not commensurate in scope with the limitations of the claims. For example the first polishing step in claim 1 is not limited to one and only one platen the applicant's arguments notwithstanding. Clearly the phrase "utilizing a first platen" as used in the claim does not avoid the prior art use of two platens since two includes a first platen. In another example the phrase "top bulk metal layer" could be read on any copper over the barrier layer, such as copper left over after a first polishing step. This is still "bulk copper".

In any event the applicant is not the inventor of the subject matter sought to be claimed, (even if the claims are given the interpretation sought by the applicant). Note the above rejection. Note also the prior art document to Miller et al that was cited in the first office action but not applied against the claims. Note also the two additional prior art documents to Chen et al and Tsai et al cited herein. Each of these noted documents expressly teaches that some or all "bulk copper" is removed at the noted removal rates (with no further removal of copper), after which the barrier layer is removed.

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
